About us

Our history

The vision of Martin House became a reality thanks to the dedication of the Venerable Richard M C Seed, then Archdeacon of York, and to the generosity of thousands of people who raised money. When Martin House opened its doors to children and their families in 1987, we became only the second children's hospice in the UK. Since that time, we have played a leading role in the development of the philosophy and delivery of children's hospice care, not only in the UK but throughout the world. Our commitment to innovative development and the delivery of high quality, child and family led services continued with the opening of Whitby Lodge in 2002, the UK's first dedicated unit for teenagers and young people.

What we do

Martin House is a purpose-built hospice for children, young people and their families, providing truly holistic care for those with life-shortening conditions. We support families from across West, North and East Yorkshire, both at our hospice and in the community. The children, young people and their families are at the heart of everything we do, and we value each member as an individual with their own needs. We pride ourselves on being a regional centre for specialist paediatric palliative care and are committed to ongoing service improvement and clinical excellence.

The hospice itself is a place where children, young people and their families can come to stay from time to time during their journey, receive specialist clinical care, well-being support and practical help. It is a place of compassion and understanding, a peaceful place but one that can also have a lively, friendly atmosphere full of fun and laughter, where children and their families make the most of the time they have together. It can of course be an emotive place, particularly when we provide end of life care and care after death in our cooled bedrooms.

Our highly specialist multi-disciplinary team supports families at Martin House; in hospital and in their own homes. This includes symptom control, advance care planning (to allow thought and planning for end of life care), clinical care, music therapy, play activities, emotional and spiritual care.

The families we help are offered the best possible support in bereavement, whether through one to one family sessions, or as part of our support groups. We have groups for siblings, parents and grandparents and offer a service to families of children who have died but did not previously use the hospice, this could include sudden or traumatic death.

We accept referrals for children and young people aged 0-19, including babies diagnosed in the antenatal stages. Both families and professionals can seek advice at any time from our experienced professionals who are experts in paediatric palliative care. We transition young people by the age of 25 out of Martin House care.

We are also a research-active organisation, with an aim to further the knowledge and understanding of paediatric palliative care.
